Using Google slides

This document provides select slide masters from our primary corporate template. These samples will be helpful for real-time collaboration when building internal presentations with your teams.

For external sharing, and a more comprehensive set of slide masters, we encourage use of our Microsoft Powerpoint template, which supports our brand font - Community.

Century Gothic is our recommended font in Google apps

Hello, I'm Century Gothic

The LinkedIn brand font - "Community" - is not currently supported in all web applications. Please use "Century Gothic" as your default font when working in Google applications.

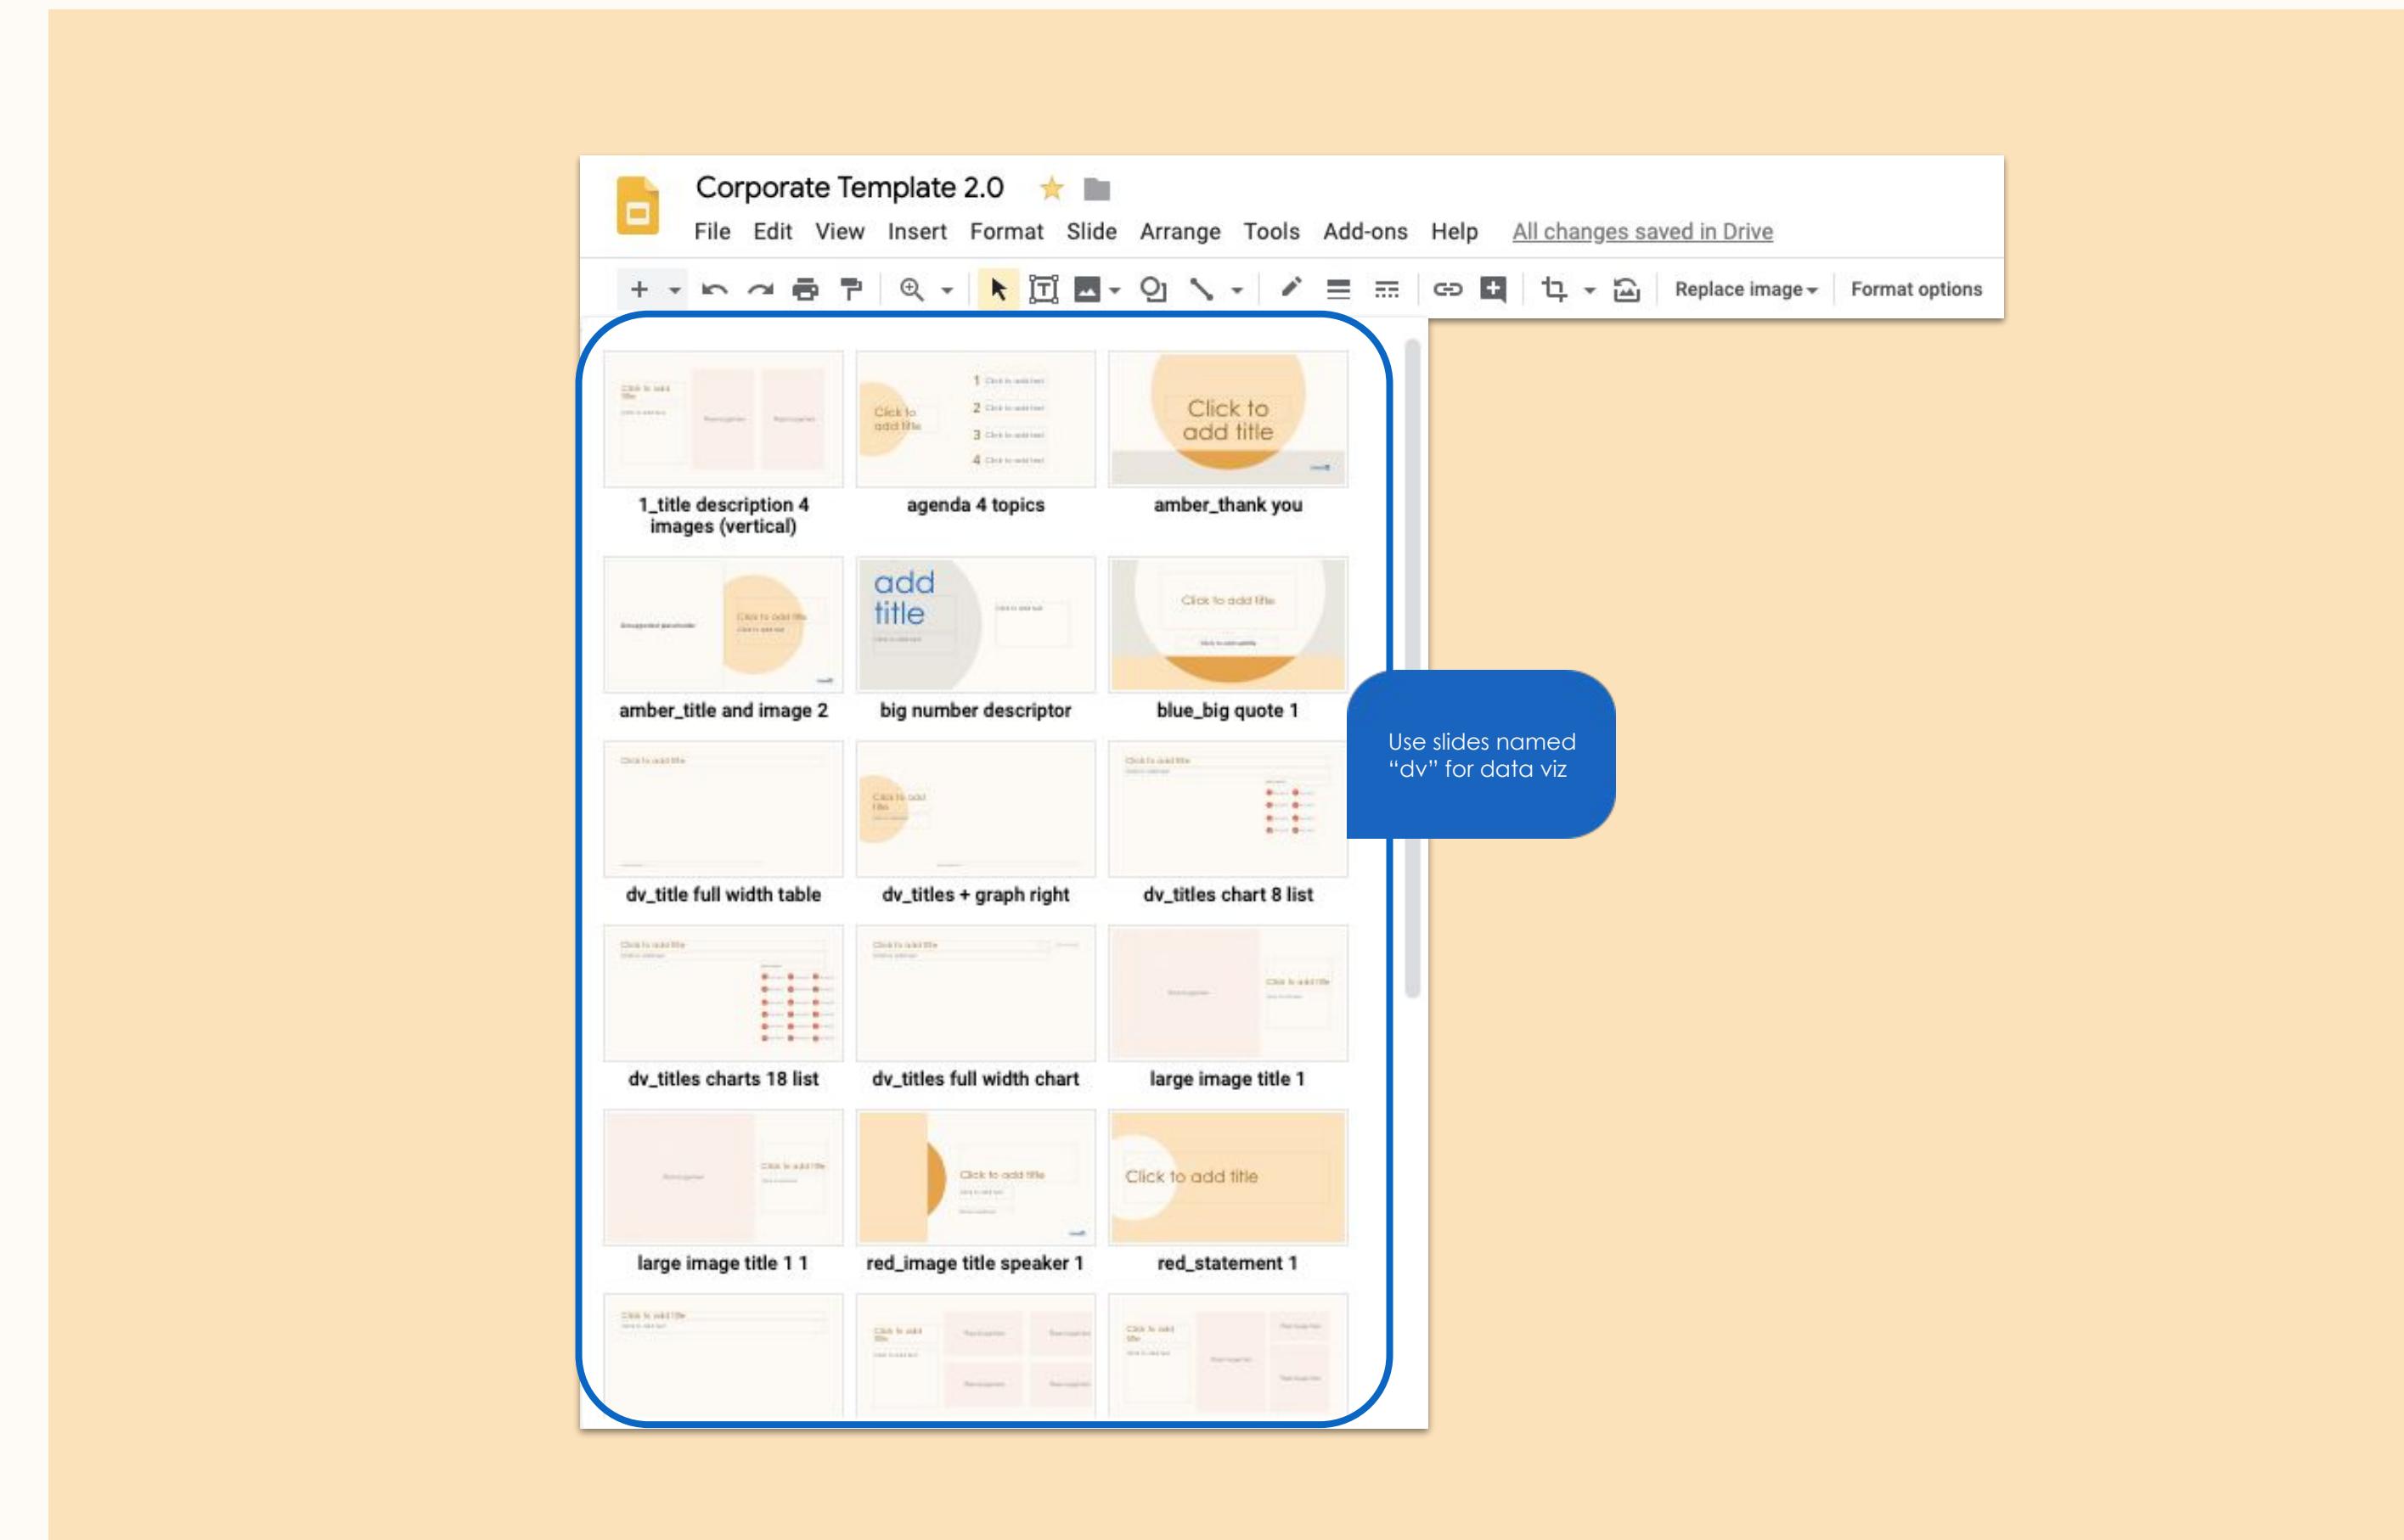

How to use slide masters

Templates for your slides

To build your own slides, use the slide masters located in the New Slide drop-down menu, under the Home tab.

Use this same color theme throughout your presentation for consistency.

In cases where your presentation has discreet sections, or is delivered by multiple speakers, you can use different colors to denote different chapters of your story.

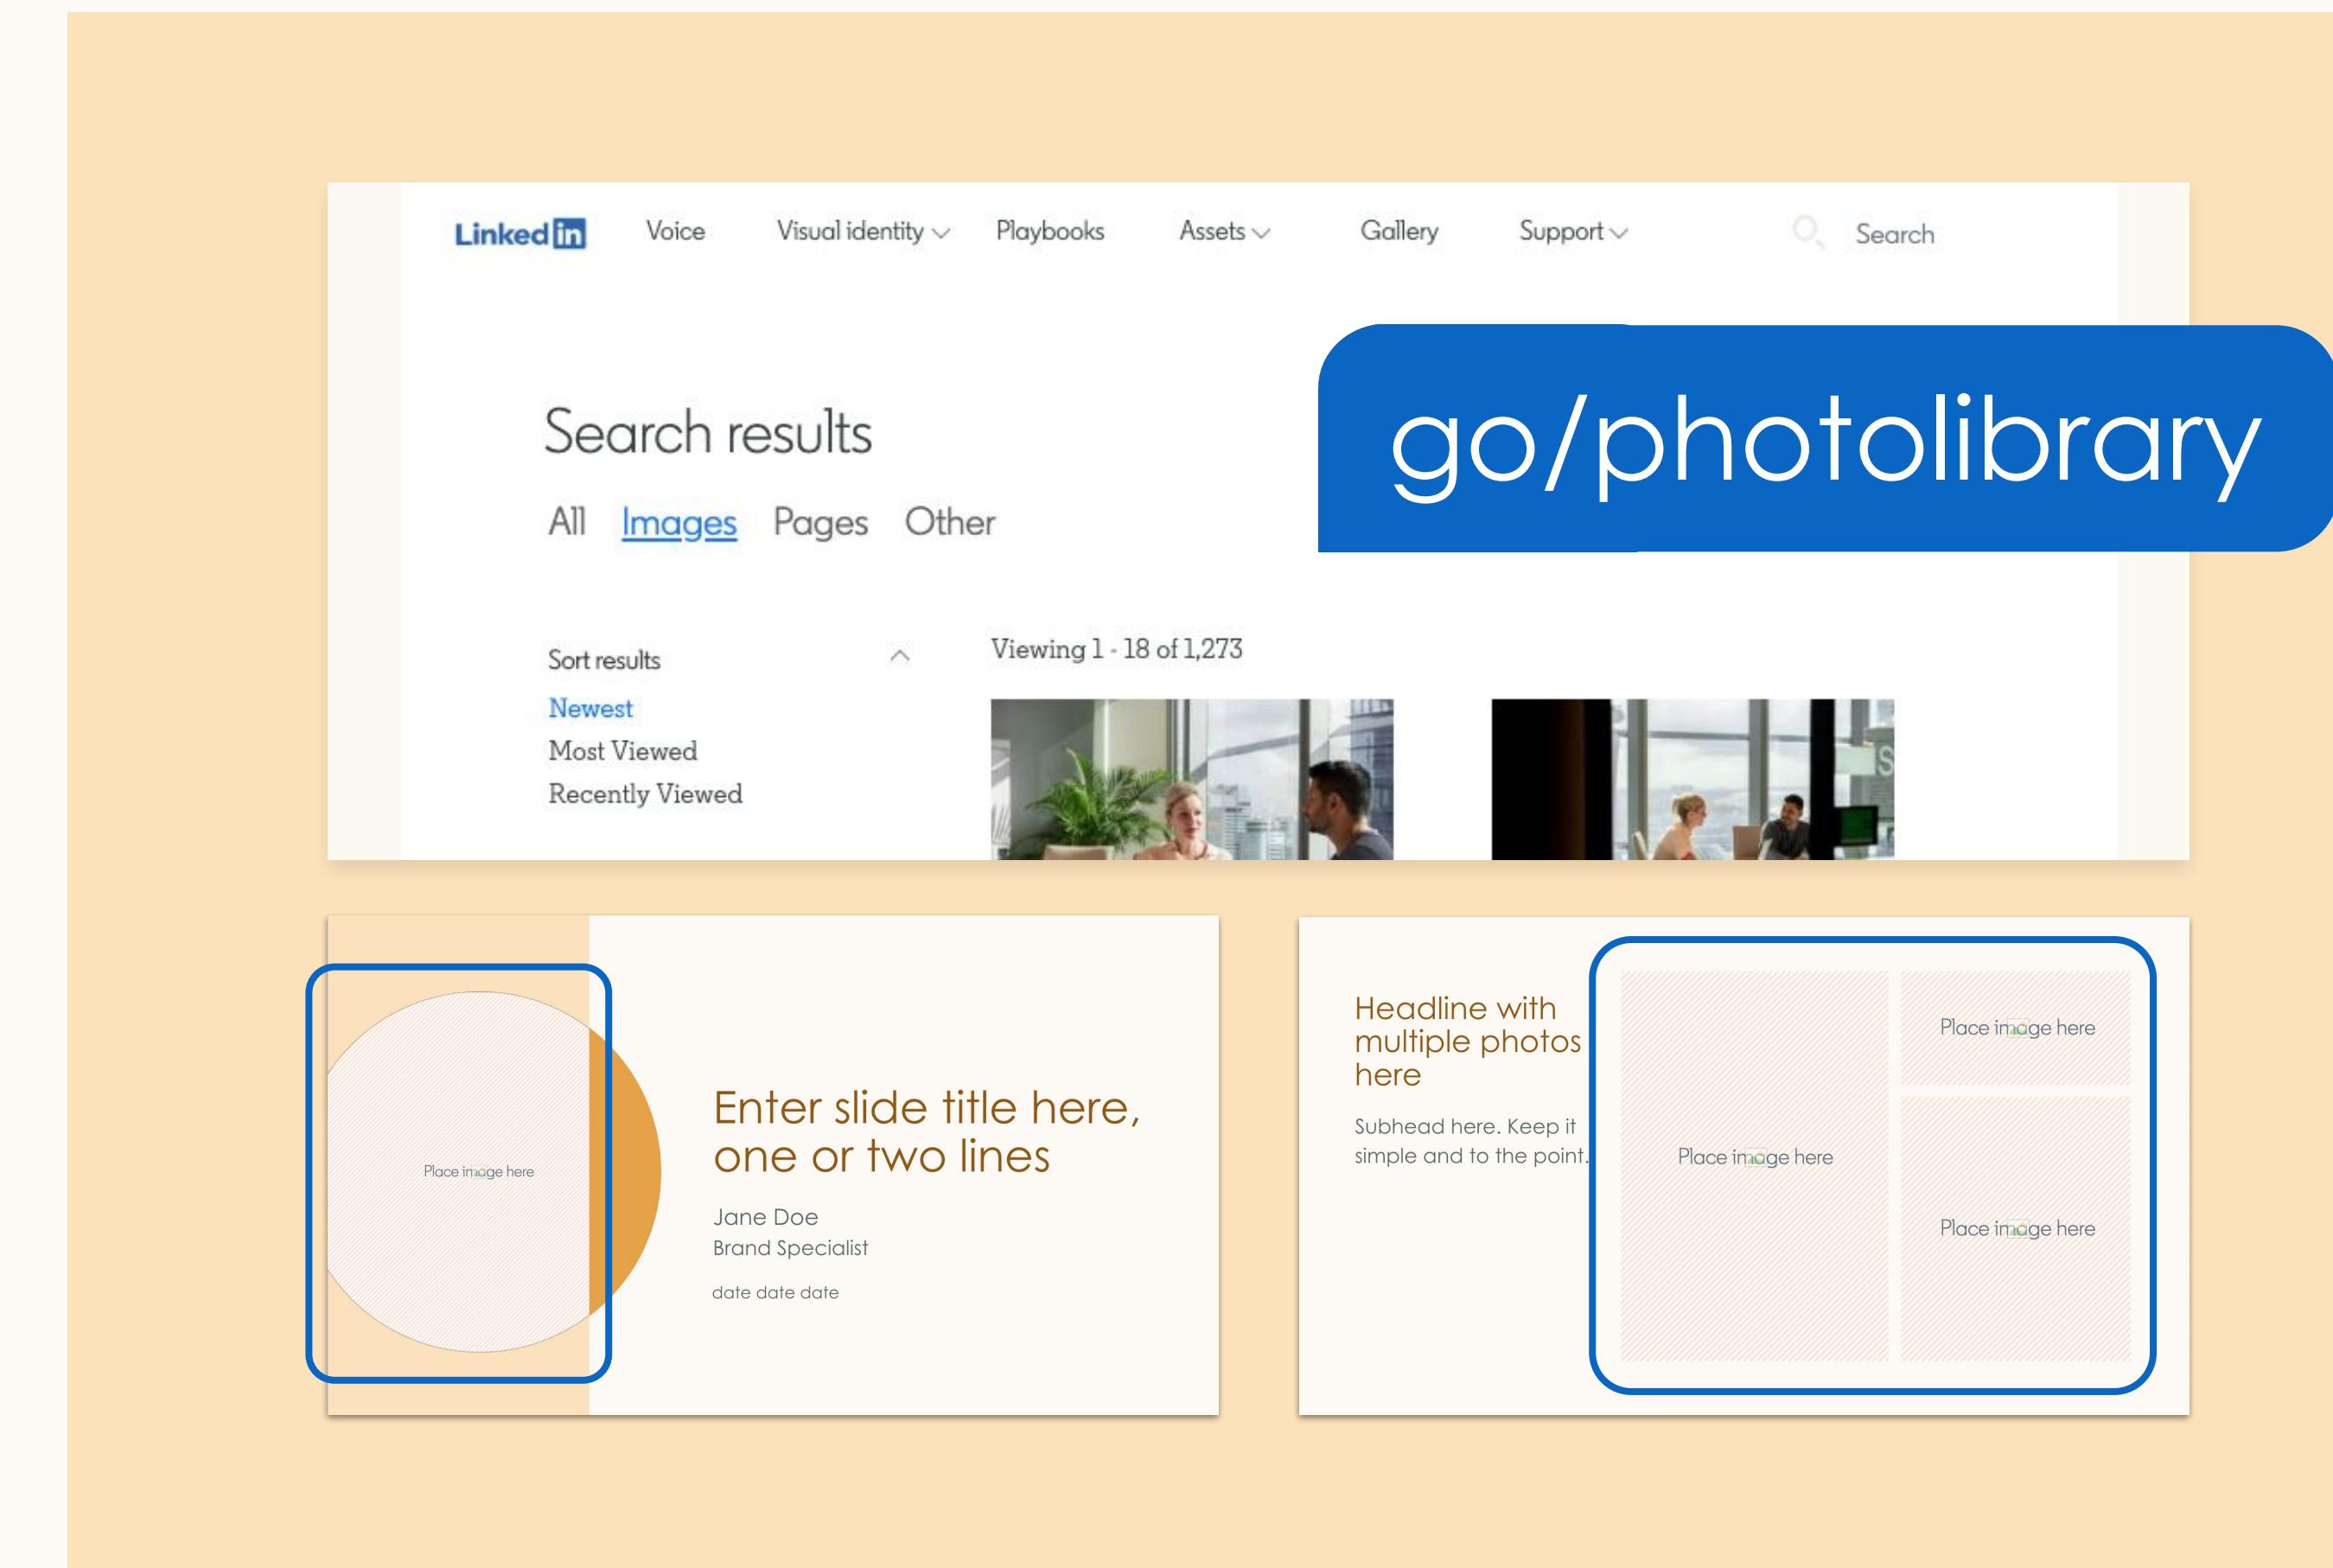

How to use our global photo library

Show the latest stories from the world of work

After downloading a photo from our Global Photo Library on go/brand, you can place images on top of designated areas to best fit layouts included in this template.

Unlike PowerPoint, Google Slides does NOT support image placeholders. You'll have to place and crop to cover designated image areas (anything with a candy stripe pattern.)

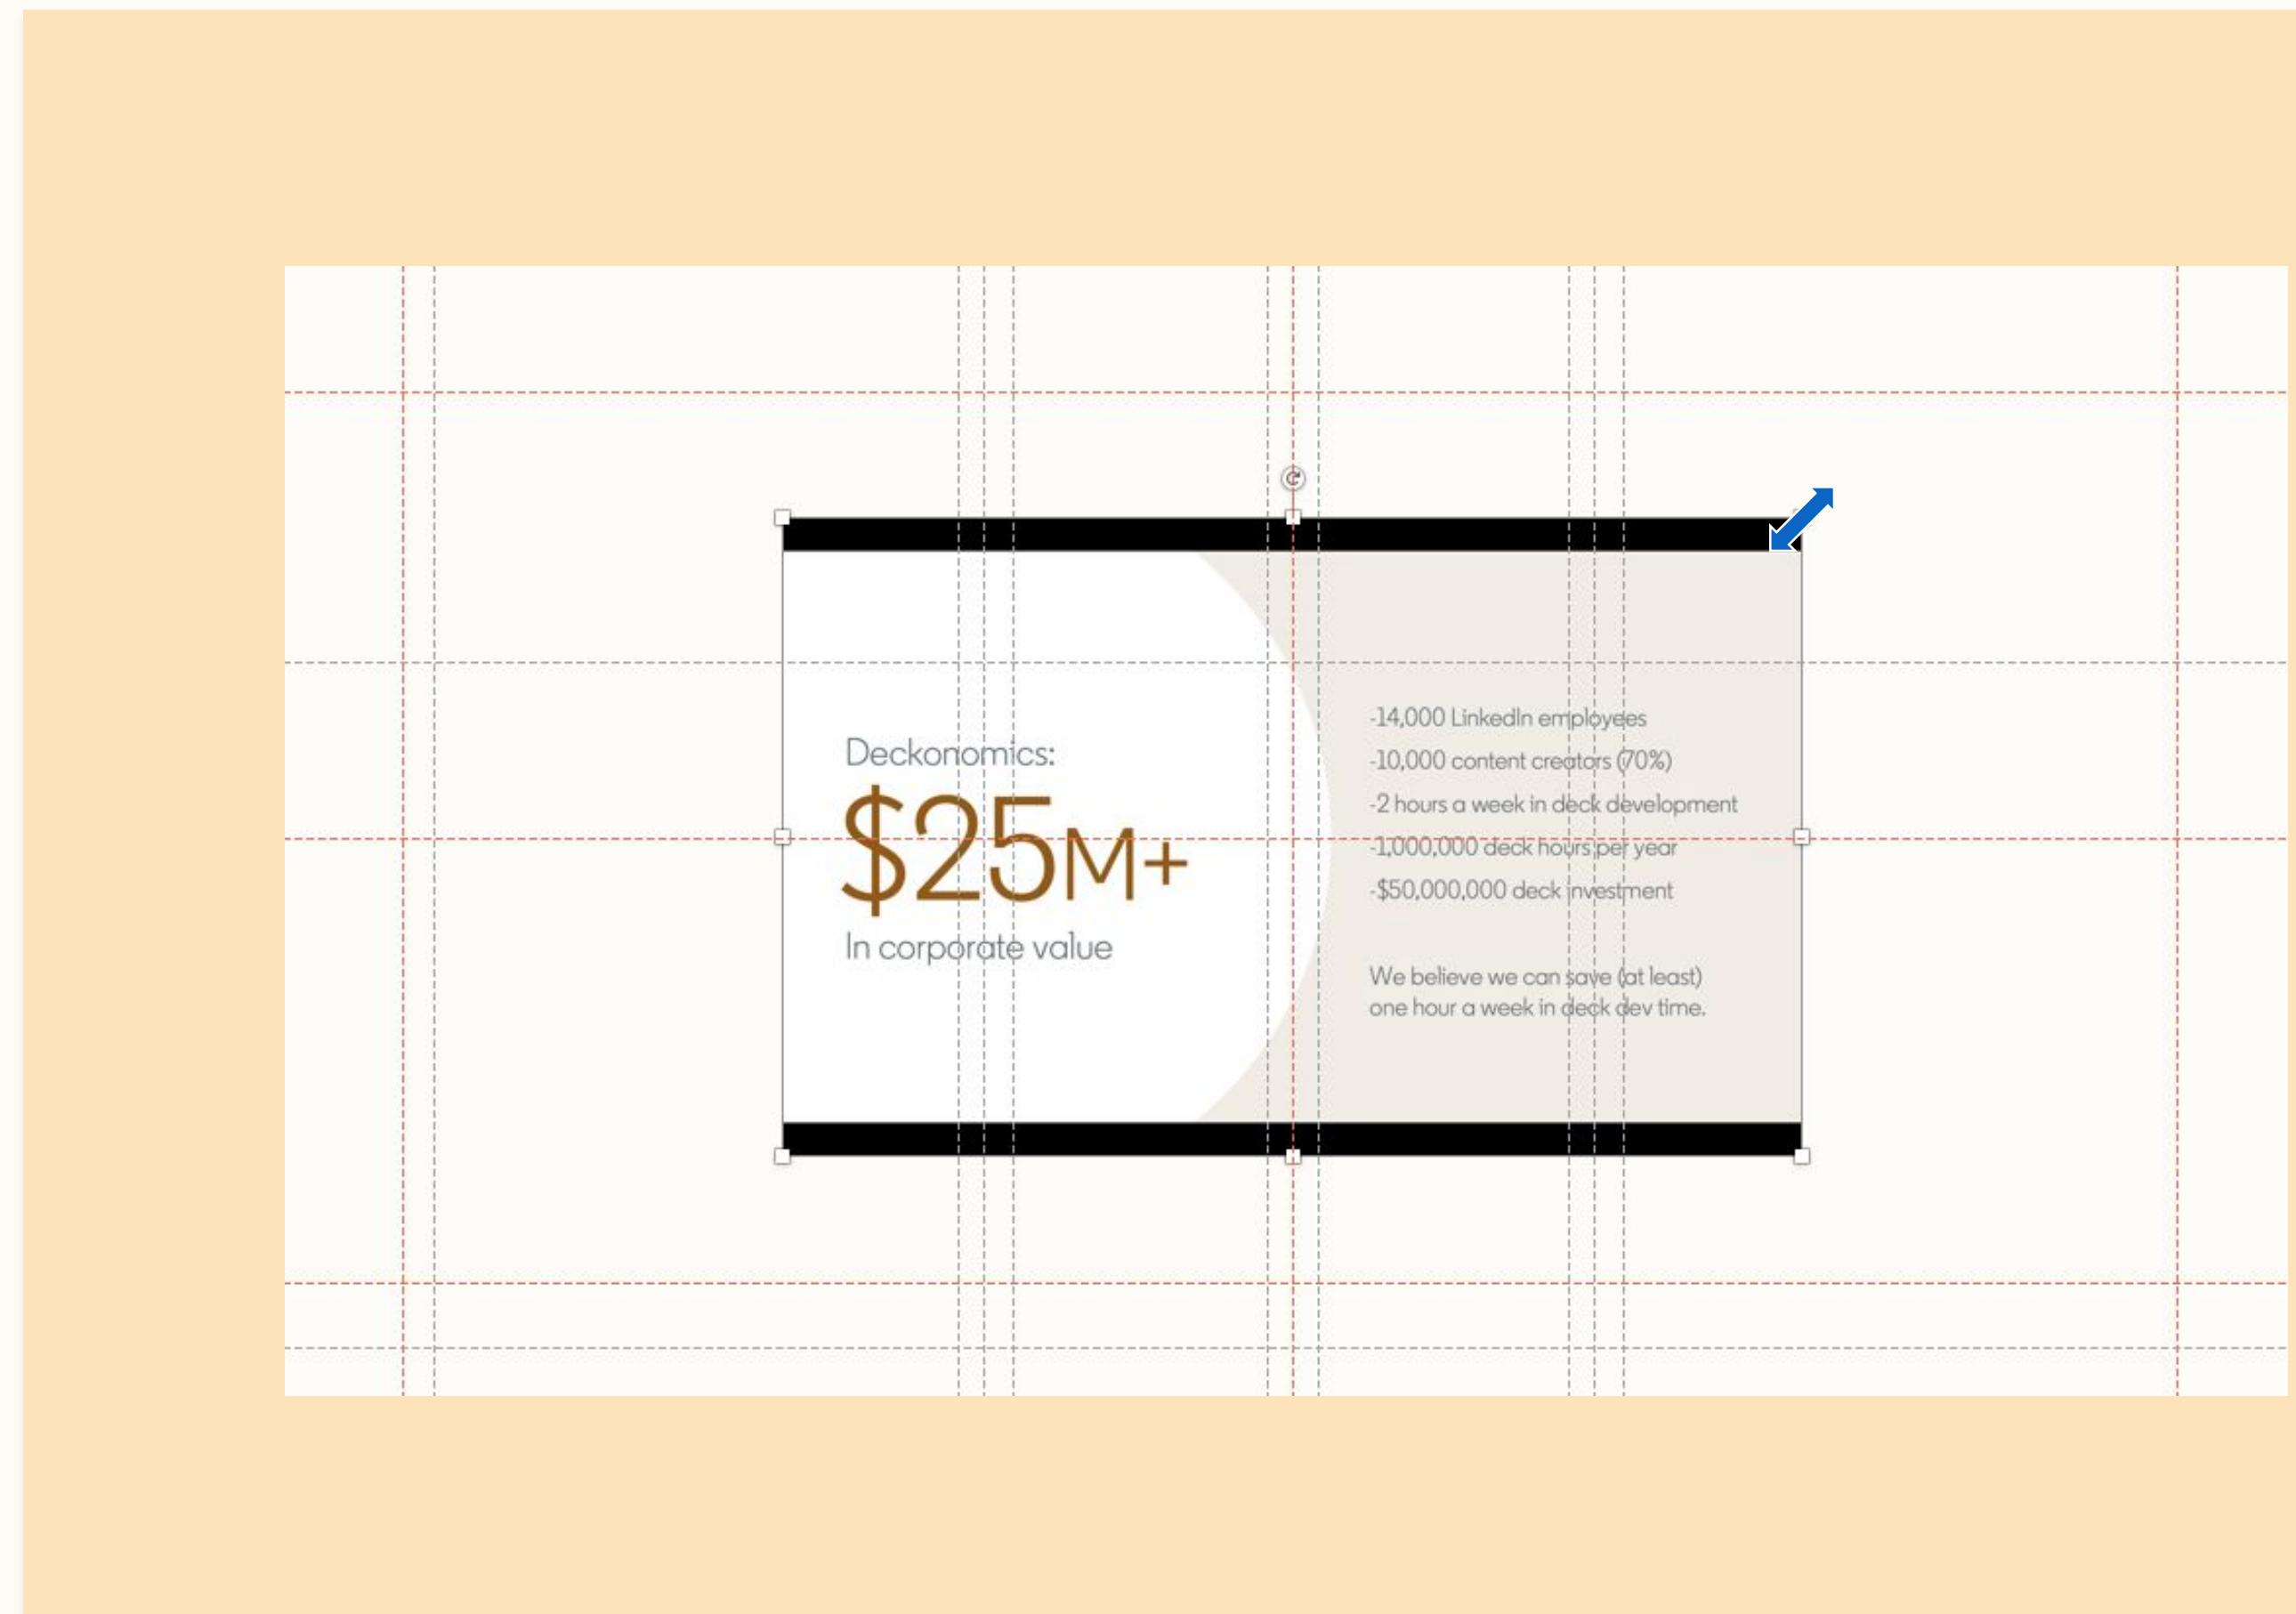

How to use a screenshot

No time to remake slides?

Use the guides embedded in this template to scale and align your slide screenshot. To activate them, go to View > Guides > Show guides.

It should match the slide masters included in this template — no one should be able to notice as you advance from slide to slide.

Sample: The magic of three columns

Subhead: The “right” number for conveying ideas more effectively.

1. Just enough

Sample support copy here:

There's a Swedish word “lagom”, that's used to convey the harmonious measurement. Finding balance is key — not too much, not too little but the perfect amount will bring greater satisfaction.

2. It's playful

Sample support copy here:

Whether you're talking about a movie trilogy, the scrooges, cereal commercials: Snap, Crackle, Pop — it's a magic number prevalent in our society that spreads optimism, fun, and creates a sense of verbal cohesion.

3. Rooted in culture

Sample support copy here:

It begins with our thoughts —whether you're writing the beginning, middle, or end, past, present, or future...we are lured by a number that has literary greatness and rhythmical harmony.

Sample: Two column layout

Two columns to comparing and contrasting points, such as do's and don'ts.

Do this

- Do talk like a real person.
- Do show professionalism while still staying approachable.
- Do listen first to understand member and customer goals.

Don't do this

- Don't use jargon.
- Don't confuse being human with being quirky.
- Don't presume to know what someone's goals are.
